With over five years of experience in the graphic design industry including my formal training and professional journey, I've developed a deep appreciation for design that is both expressive and purposeful. My current role as a Junior Designer at The Hustler's Collective has pushed me to refine my creative instincts and approach projects with both strategic intent and artistic integrity. I thrive in both collaborative environments and solo workflows, believing that great design often emerges from a fusion of diverse perspectives. At the core, I design to satisfy a personal standard of aesthetic and meaning. Only then can my work resonate with teams, clients, and audiences alike. Each project is an opportunity to evolve, and I constantly seek challenges that help me grow not just as a designer.

Present

The Hustler's Collective is a dynamic digital marketing agency known for its collaborations with renowned global brands. During my time here, I had the opportunity to work on projects for MediaTek, a leading semiconductor and chipset manufacturer. As a graphic designer, I contributed across a wide range of creative needs—from live event visuals and social media campaigns to publication media like newsletters and white papers. My work included designing chipset graphics, lifestyle-driven imagery, and brand-aligned visual content across different scales and formats.
